

The Color of Love Kit

2 Cards Decks to use for Reading the energy of a current love situation or the energy of a new love situation

TheGameCrafter.com does not do card sorting, so once you get the cards make sure to separate them into two decks. One has a heart/butterfly symbol on each card. The other deck has numbered cards.

The Two Decks & Pendulum Chart

This kit includes two decks and a pendulum chart.

The deck with heart and butterfly design on each card is the Color of Love deck. This is the deck to use to determine the energy of a love situation that is current and which you have the name of a love interest to ask about what they feel, what their intentions are, etc. This deck can be shuffled so that some cards become reversed in direction while the rest are upright.

The deck with the numbered bar at the bottom of each card is the Color of New Love deck. This is the deck to use to read situations where you want to determine what type of love will be coming into your own or a querent's life and when will it occur. This deck is meant to be used with all cards in an upright position. This way, you can use the side that is upright to ask about the energy of a new love situation that will be coming in. Then, you can flip the deck over in order to read concerning timing or other elements.

For example, you could ask, "What type of love is coming in for {give the person's name}?" Say you draw the "lucky you" card, which states you are lucky with attracting a Mr. or Miss "Right." To get more details, you can flip the deck over and draw a few more cards. One card may say "very soon," another might say "heal your past," and a third might say "off and on." This could mean someone is coming very soon who you will feel is Mr. or Miss Right but that it would benefit you to heal your past. The relationship might exhibit some on-again, off-again energy (you might hook up, not hear from them a while and then resume thing, or it could be an on-again, off-again love affair). If you tend to attract relationships that are off and on, this is where you might want to heal your past.

Sometimes you may find yourself getting conflicting messages. If so, use the energy of the overall situation to read what might be going on. For example, if you draw "be careful" while drawing a card for meeting Mr. or Miss Right, then perhaps someone you will think is Mr. or Miss Right may be someone you want to start slow with or be a little cautious of at first.

Feel free to mix and match the cards in order to experiment. I have used the Color of New Love deck to get information on a current love interest and have used the Color of Love to read deeper into a new love situation (what to be careful of, to watch for, what a new love interest's intentions will be, etc.). What's important is you are using the words instead of image based cards to intuit into a situation. If you do not understand what a card means, use your intuition for what feeling the words trigger. I had someone ask me what "Game of conquest" means. Depending on the situation it could mean someone needing to be right, someone wanting a notch in their bedpost or someone who is competitive. Work with the cards intuitively for how to create a story with them.

A pendulum chart is included in this kit so that you may be able to get more details; such as yes/no, hair color, first letter of name, or details involving numbers or timing. For information on how to use a pendulum chart, you can google "how to use a pendulum chart" on the internet. For a demonstration, you can look for a video on this subject on YouTube. If you do not already own a pendulum, you can make your own by using a ring on a strand of dental floss (the ring will act as a weight).

For how to use the color or astrological features of these cards, see further down this document.

One Card Spread

A one card spread gives a basic overview of the core energy involved in your relationship or the core energy of a future relationship. To do a reading, spread the cards out face down in front of you.

Shuffle if you desire. Ask your High Self what the core energy of your relationship is, what you need to know about it, or how do they feel about you. Then, draw a card. Read only the blurb that is upright and at the top of the card.

For example, let us say you are interested in someone at work that you've never dated but there has been eye contact and flirting back and forth. You want to know if they are interested. So, you draw a card from the Color of Love deck and it reads "Fertility." This might indicate they are sexually attracted to you. If you drew the card "Game of conquest," it might mean they are interested in you, but you would likely end up a notch on their bedpost. "Risk revealing yourself" might indicate nothing might happen unless you can approach them in a more direct way or ask them out.

As another example, if you are in a committed relationship and draw a card which states that no commitment is coming, depending on your situation, it could mean your love interest is workaholic or not good at committing to meet your needs, etc. So, use your intuition rather than taking each card blurb literally.

Just like cards with pictures and images, to use these cards you might have to read between the lines with what is written on each card (feeling the nuance or energy rather than taking a card literally). Also, these cards use words such as "love interest," "partner," and "relationship." These words can be interchanged, as appropriate to your situation. They generally refer to the person you have in mind or the person coming in the future.

Three Card Spread

The past-present-future, three card spread is good to use to determine what happened in the past, what is happening in the present, and what could potentially happen in the future. Whenever you use cards, remember that the outcome is only a potential. Outcomes are often not written in stone and there are spreads you can do to determine different outcomes based on different action as opposed to staying on a current path.

To do a reading, spread the cards face down in front of you. Shuffle if you desire. Then, draw one card for each of the three positions, starting with the past. Read what each card has to say, in the same manner as discussed in the prior section.

Another three card spread that you can use involves drawing three "present" cards to get an overview of the current situation.

For instance, let's say the first card you draw indicates you are in competition with another for your love interest's affection. A second card reveals that he "isn't coping." However, a third card indicates he feels romantically toward you. You could read from these three cards that there may be someone else in the picture who s/he is still getting over, though they may still be open to having a romance with you/the querent. They might still need to heal their heart before they are ready to seek a serious relationship.

Lastly, you can draw one to three cards in answer to a specific question, such as, "Why didn't they call or reach out?" or "Why did they disappear?" Use the energy of the cards, together, to intuit an answer.

Using the Card Backs to Read the Color Energy of a Love Situation

The cards were created double sided so that you could go by the written blurbs on each card or flip them over to read from the color energy or the symbols.

If using the cards in this way, spread them out with the backs of the cards face down and the sides with writing on them visible. Without looking at the cards, draw a card while asking, "What is the color energy of this love situation." Use your intuition for what the color energy could represent.

Alternatively, you can use the guide below:

- White positive: pure motivations, peacefulness, potential to grow spiritually from the relationship. White negative: deception, impure motivations, a need to clear one's space.
- Red positive: passion, intensity, initiative, vitality, and chemistry. Red negative: fears (of intimacy or commitment), domination, games of conquest, frustration, temperamental outbursts. Could be an intense relationship with some red flags.

- Orange positive: sexuality, fertility and chemistry. You and a partner may feel butterflies in the stomach. Orange negative: be careful with your sexuality, infertility or sexual dysfunction, sexual addictions or inhibitions, unwanted pregnancies or STD's.
- Yellow positive: A lighthearted relationship. Might be more fun and spontaneity than commitment. Friendliness, sociability. Yellow negative: lack of commitment, flakiness, insincerity, a superficial or "friendship relationship."
- Green positive: commitment, security, healing. Opening of the heart. Warmth, comfort and empathy. Green negative: jealousy, possessiveness, stubbornness, envy, greed.
- Blue positive: lots of communication. Blue might convey a less lovey dovey energy which is cooler or more emotionally detached. Blue negative: inability to communicate, lack of expression, coldness, reservedness, hiding one's feelings or true wishes or self.
- Indigo positive: thinking outside the box, experimentation, adventure, a psychic or intellectual connection. Indigo negative: obsession, worry, over-thinking things, rebelliousness, indecisiveness.
- Violet positive: someone is put on a pedestal or worshipped like royalty, authority, wisdom, humility. Violet negative: pride, vanity, excessive criticism, bossiness, superiority complex.
- Black positive: Depth, complexity, transformation, venturing into the unknown. Black negative: addictions, compulsions, love-hate relationships, desire for revenge, manipulation, vindictiveness. Black can indicate that a relationship is bringing out the shadow side in each partner.
- Pink positive: Romance, affection, courtship, loving words, tenderness. Pink negative: weakness, lack of self-worth, shyness, hesitation, timidity to reach out.
- Silver positive: Emotional depth, empathic bonding, a starry-eyed romance. Silver negative: intrigue, deception, illusion, not seeing things clearly, moodiness, overwhelm. Someone may need to retreat now and then.
- Gold positive: Someone is treated like gold or is a trophy wife (or partner). Gold can also indicate financial abundance, gift giving, tokens of affection, or that a ring is bought. Gold negative: worries about money, feelings of lack, workaholism, greed.

Working with the Astrological and Other symbols.

Each card back and front of the Color of Love deck and Court Cards deck has an astrological symbol on it and a male or female symbol. You could use this to ask what type of personality a love interest has, what time frame something will occur, or even who will reach out first (the man or the woman). For example, if you draw Taurus, the person might like security and commitment in a relationship but be possessive or if asking a time frame you could offer springtime.

There are also other types of symbols on each card. A crown could mean someone is being treated like royalty. A lightning bolt could mean something coming out of the blue or feeling struck by lightning. Use your intuition for how to use the cards and their symbols.
